	Enclosed Remington 700 adl 222 # A6524525
	was sold to a customer new The gun had defective alarm in it. Due to this defect he was unloading the gun and the gun
	fired causing a hole in the roof of his new truck. Lucky enough he was an experienced shooter and the gun
	was pointed in safe direction. However his wife and he were shot at not to say
