Dear Sirs:

Several weeks ago I saw one of the news programs which highlighted one of your rifles that discharged with no intentional action by any individual to fire the rifle.

The program caught my attention when they showed instances of the rifle going off in cars, homes and at inopportune times as well as the loss of body parts etc. due to the unintentional discharge. I was shocked to because I had one of these rifles and it had happened to me.

I own such a rifle. It is herewith enclosed. After calling your service dept. they advised that I send in the rifle to the company for analysis.

I was pointing down range getting ready to site in my rifle when it went off in my hand. Luckily I was pointed down range and no one injured or no property damaged. Needless to say I was shaken by the event.

Since that time I have been afraid to use the gun and after seeing the T. V. program I understand that, that fear was justified.

Please advise as to your solution to this very upsetting and potential dangerous rifle.

Thank you.

Most sincerely,

Bob Ashcroft
