Dear Sirs:

On three occasions my Remington 700 has fired when I released the safety. Each time my hand was not on the trigger. The first time was five years ago when I was hunting in Colorado. I had leaned my rifle against a jeep and it fell to the ground. Approximately thirty minutes later when I was out hunting, the gun fired when I switched the safety from on to off. The second time was also five years ago. This time the gun was not jarred. I was in a deer blind and the rifle fired without my touching the trigger. The last time occurred when I was unloading the rifle. I keep my gun in excellent condition and I am at a loss to explain why the gun misfires. Please advise me as to what course of action to take.

Sincerely,

Omar Hallum
