Subject: Model 700 Extraction

In the recent Field Quality Meeting, we mentioned a report by Don McClure, in which he noted several gunsmiths on the West Coast were reluctant to fit up 700's for African safaris because they felt the extraction system might fail while hunting dangerous game.

John Brooks advised of a competitive test Ilion research had made, and forwarded me a copy. Attached are three copies of this report, one for each of the Field Service people.

Please advise Fred and Don to use these whenever necessary to combat any derogatory claims about the Model 700 extraction system, but under no circumstances should they be copied and distributed.

Many thanks.
