Dear Remington Gunsmith:

Many of you have expressed your concern over our restriction of sales of some firearms components. We are happy to pass along some relief in this area. Enclosed is a bulletin covering the procedure for replacement of Model 700 trigger assemblies. With this procedure, Arms Service can now provide you with Model 700 trigger assemblies, instead of requiring that the whole gun be returned to Ilion for repair.

Procedures covering our other center fire rifle models should be ready for distribution in early December, with shotguns following in January.

Due to present liability laws and trends, it becomes necessary for us to restrict sales of component parts which, if improperly repaired or replaced, could make our firearms unsafe for use.

We continue to be confident of your technical capabilities, and our action was taken to minimize the possibility of these parts being misused by untrained individuals. Your patience in this area is appreciated.

Very truly yours,

R.L. St. John, Supervisor
