 Subject: RE: 710 T&P guns

Danny,
 We are actively beginning work on an audit of our gun inventory -- which will include identifying M/710 product which will be returned to Mayfield. Realistically, it will most likely be after first of the year before we physically ship product back to you. We have some product which must be destroyed as we ran some rather destructive experiments (high pressure) on them. I would suggest that we cut this product up here in Etown and provide you with the S/N's -- that way there is no chance the product will find its way back into the process. As to putting product/parts back into inventory -- I suspect that there will be minimal value on most of these guns. The 2nd group of 30 (our series B) was drop tested into oblivion -- in the 3rd group (our series C) 10 guns have in excess of 500 rounds on them, 14 more have 100 rounds on them, and 6 were drop tested. . . . Candidly, I doubt that there is much that's salvageable. . . .
 Dale

 >We have sent 90 710s to E-town. The 1st 30 were charged to E-Town and the other 60 were charged to Mayfield 710 Start up costs. 27 of the 1st 30 have been return and credited against the E-Town charge. We would like to get a similar credit on the 60 Mayfield guns. When do you think they will be returned so that the parts can be credited back into inventory.
