Dear Mr. Wentler,
Thank you for your inquiry. According to the information provided, this firearm was manufactured in or around 1957 and the original suggested retail price was $74.95. If you will complete the form located through the link below we will forward to you a copy of the original owner's manual.

We have a Safety Modification Program on certain model bolt action rifles. This is a voluntary program, it is not a recall. However, the Model 722 is not included in the Safety Modification program.

You can read more information regarding our firearms and our Safety Modification program through the front page of our website or the link below:

The safe use and performance of your firearm depends on correct assembly and routine maintenance, as well as adherence to the "10 Commandments of Firearm Safety." <http://www.remington.com/support/10comm.htm> It is critical that you familiarize yourself with the information in both the owners manual and safety booklet. Whether you are a veteran shooter with a collection of Remington firearms, or a first time shooter, take the time to review this important literature and be certain that you are practicing firearm safety!

Dear Remington: I have a model 722, serial #416390, which came into my possession nearly thirty years ago. I was searching your site for information on this piece, when I found a safety notice pertaining to the bolt-lock/safety mechanism. I would like all the necessary information regarding this notice if possible. I also have no factory information on this gun. Is it possible to obtain a copy of the owner's manual for this gun as well? Other info such as the date of manufacture, original selling price (msr), etc. would be greatly appreciated.

Regarding the safety notification: We are located in Rock Island, IL, directly across the Mississippi river from Davenport, IA. Where would the nearest authorized Remington technician be located?

Your attention to my request is appreciated. Thank you.
