

I have 4 model 700 Classics. A 6mm, .243, 7mm-08 and .30-06. My .243 is the o...

Discussion Thread

Response (Jessica)
Dear Seth,

1/17/2003 9:36:00 AM

Thank you for your inquiry. All model 700's were designed that way before 1982. Please click on the link below for information on having it changed:

http://www.remington.com/Safety\_Modification\_Program/remington\_safety.htm

Customer (Seth Lee)

1/14/2003 7:56:53 PM

I have 4 model 700 Classics. A 6mm, .243, 7mm-08 and .30-06. My .243 is the only one of the four that I have to have the safety off to unbolt the action. I feel this is possibly an unsafe condition and I wanted to know if this was the proper way the safty is suppose to work.