

can the action on this gun be converted to the 350 rem mag? would the action ...

Discussion Thread

Response (Chris)

1/31/2003 11:09:44 AM

Dear Mr. Miulli,
Thank you for contacting Remington Country. Remington would not offer rebarreling for the .350 Rem Mag. You would be going from a short action to a long action mag caliber. You would need to replace the firearm.

Remington began offering the conversion from a bolt-lock to non-bolt-lock in 2002. If you would like to convert your Model 600, our Remington Authorized Repair Centers offer this modification at a special price. You can locate your nearest repair center by visiting the Repair Information Center in our Support Section and selecting your model and state:

<http://www.remington.com/repairsvc/ModelSelection.asp>

A source for parts for the Model 600 follows:

Mart's Customs
59 B Cookeville Hwy
Carthage, TN 37030
toll free: 866-203-2649

Customer (ron miulli)

1/30/2003 4:49:37 PM

can the action on this gun be converted to the 350 rem mag? would the action or bolt need any modification? does remington do these conversions? if so do you have a ballpark cost? this gun received the new style trigger in 1998, i thought i read that this would allow the bolt to be opened with the safety on. is this correct? if so this gun will still not open on safety. also, the bolt becomes very difficult to open and close after several shots. lubrication does not seem to help. any ideas? is there a way to add a floor plate or detachable magazine to this gun? thanks!!