

I purchased a model 700 mountain rifle about 3 or 4 years ago. I hunt in brush...

Discussion Thread

Response (Dell)
Dear Jim,

3/6/2003 3:43:00 PM

Thank you for your inquiry. Unfortunately, we only manufacture the rifles without a bolt-lock on them. We haven't had a bolt-lock on our rifles since 1981. We are not aware of anything that can be done to your rifle to keep the bolt from opening in heavy brush.

Customer (JIM COSTELLO)

3/5/2003 4:41:26 PM

I purchased a model 700 mountain rifle about 3 or 4 years ago. I hunt in brushy and laurel choked woods and the bolt on this gun is constantly getting caught and opening on me. I have lost several cartridges also. I know this feature is for safety reasons. Is there any changes that can be made to this gun to lock the bolt. Otherwise I like this gun and do not want to have to get rid of it. thanks, JIM COSTELLO