

Concern with Safety on Model 700

Discussion Thread

Response (Chris)

12/1/2004 4:24:28 PM

Dear Randy:

If the gun has been properly maintained and the trigger has never been adjusted and it has been evaluated for safe use and function by a competent gunsmith, as long as you follow the safe rules of firearm handling the gun should not cause any problems. We offered the bolt lock modification for shooters to make their guns to where the safety could be applied on the firearm while unloading was performed. This is not a recall, just a modification that we offer to make the gun more modernized and safer. Your safety is always our main concern. We will be glad to discuss this with you further if you will call us at 1-800-243-9700 M-F 9am-5pm EST.

Customer (Randy Hall)

11/23/2004 11:02:39 AM

I appreciate your response, however, you did not answer my question. My question is in regards to Model 700 rifles of the 70's era going off without being touched and with the safety "on".