ARMORER'S SCHOOL OVERVIEW

The Remington Armorer's School started decades ago with a single instructor and courses presented only at the plant in Ilion, N.Y. Today, the school has four instructors with over 100 years combined experience. Courses are presented in Ilion, and at requested locations in the U.S., Canada, and internationally. Our mission is to train Law Enforcement personnel how to repair and maintain the Remington firearms used by their officers. Courses are limited to taw enforcement, government, or military personnel only.

Over the years, our 100% American-made products have evolved to keep pace with the rapidly changing needs of the Law Enforcement community. A wide range of accessory options allows the customer to tailor Remington products to their specific needs. Because of the variety of choices available, the department armorer must understand how to repair, maintain, and service these systems.

At these factory sponsored training sessions, students can acquire in-depth training on service, inspection, troubleshooting, repair, factory authorized modification, disassembly, and re-assembly techniques for all Reinington law enforcement shotguns and rifles, in short, it's everything they'll need to keep these firearms in peak working order at all times.

We offer a choice of 2 1/2 day courses for the 870 series shotguns and the 700 series rifles, or 4 day courses for the 870 and 1187 series shotguns and the 700 series rifles. Training for all the three gun series is presented only in our comprehensive 4 day factory school in New York. While field classes are popular with many agencies for a variety of reasons, they should not be considered a substitute for the factory schools. The 4 day factory school adds a dimension to the course that cannot be equaled in the field, as an example, the armorer can witness, first-hand, the production methods used in the manufacture of Remington products.

Regardless of the location, after successful completion of the course, which includes practical and written examination, the student will receive a certificate valid for a period of three years.
