

But he says that he doesn't think that he would ever feel comfortable with it again. He won't even sell it or trade it in because he's afraid that someone might eventually get hurt with it. He plans to take it apart so no one can use it again.

Do you have any ideas? He's really upset about all of this. I know he loves this gun, it's obvious from the way he babies it. He's gone shopping for a gun, but he can't find anything he thinks he'll be happy with.

I appreciate any help you can give me, especially if it helps me get my 3030 back from him.

Thanks alot,
Rita Sullivan