Discussion Thread

Customer ( WACOGUNSM@aol.com)

A customer brought in a Rem. 700 Ser no. A6272852. He said he put the safety on after loading it in the house, and it went off. I have no idea why in the house, but it did not injure anyone, but put a hole in the wall.

He would like to keep the gun local due to shipping expense, and I told him I would do what I can.

First of all, I have been a Gunsmith since 1966; have had remington triggers completely apart, and very able to repair this one if I had the proper parts to bring it up to date for safety.

Would you be able to send me the parts?

Please let me know.

I am a FFL holder, but it is apparently a warranty situation, so it will come back to you.

Do I need a Return No.?

Unfortunately a concern of this nature would require the gun come back to us for an inspection, if he is looking to have it reviewed for consideration as a possible warranty issue. If he simply wishes to purchase the replacement trigger then you can do this for him if you have an FFL.
