Rifle. I called and spoke to a person in your consumer division and explained the problem.

What happened is that upon unloading the rifle with the safe off I hit the bolt to start extraction the rifle went off.

I sent this gun back to you at least 7-10 yrs ago on a recall.

I believe it had a firing problem.

I do not remember exactly what it was.

My problem is that in unloading it it was going to pop the bullets onto the bed of my friends pickup when it went off.
What I would like to know if the problem was not corrected the first time, would Remington help me in paying the repair damage.
I realized I probably made a blunder by not pointing it at the ground, but thank goodness no one was injured.
