

Orig sent to F.E. Morgan 1/9/63

REMINGTON ARMS COMPANY, INC.
INTER-DEPARTMENTAL CORRESPONDENCE

Remington
APD

12-30-62

To: Wayne Locket

From: K.D. Osland

XP100 Test.

Dear Wayne:

Before making any suggestions on the XP100 I think it would be a nice thing to insert a piece of cardboard between the carrying case & shipping box - then opening my box & using a knife to cut the seaming strip I cut slightly into the case. There is no doubt that dealers will open the box the same way - a piece of cardboard between the carrying case & the shipping box will eliminate this.

We've had some terrible weather since receiving the arm and ammo.

I'd suggest that the checkering be around the front of the grips - the nylon will "do" by using a leg joint instead of butt joint for finger. S.M.A.

REMINGTON ARMS COMPANY, INC.

INTER-DEPARTMENTAL CORRESPONDENCE

Remington
6120

is slick & to me makes it hard to hold.
I improved my grips as soon as I wound the grip with electrician's friction tape.

I don't go along with the way the sights are adjusted. Also I feel 8" would be better.

The arm felt muzzle light and hard to hold without a mottle. I taped a piece of extruded lead wire to the fore-end of the stock. it helped me a great deal.

Ejection, extraction & feeding OK.

I might add that in taping the extruded lead wire to the fore end it was of greater length than combined bullet lengths would be.

Grip at base with contact of heel of hand seems too large.

Would suggest the trigger balance be held in place
by washers to keep it in line with the slot of the trigger link.

If these do not line up easily & customer forces severe in assembling gun the balance mechanism could be lost.

REMINGTON ARMS COMPANY, INC.

INTER-DEPARTMENTAL CORRESPONDENCE

Remington

Trigger pull excellent.

My folder on the XP-100 shows the fold release in plain sight. which it is not.

Safety OK.

Regards,
Kay Oakland

P.S.
On the letter sent me. as soon as I completed test I was to return arm to you.
It is going out by express to you to-morrow.

As a suggestion Wayne may not give us a Target
22 auto pistol - using H66.?!?