MODEL 700 IMPROVEMENTS

Work priorities in model making and procurement seem to be affecting chance of having a complete model within the near future. There are also some design and/or material problems affecting the fire control as regards to firing pin breakage. However, this should have no bearing on the appearance model.

I think the most important is we have not reached a decision on the checkering pattern. I have asked Lloyd Fox to meet with us this afternoon if possible to see if a start can be made.
