

DEAR SIRS,

A gunsmith suggested I send my gun to you since it might touch on product liability.

I love this .243. It is so accurate that anything I point it at dies. I really have a good reputation as a good shot while using this gun. I always brag about my .243.

I removed the scope but didn't do a good job on the ^{BASE} mount. I think I might have stripped a screw.

Anyway - now the problem this gun is about 12 yrs. Every October when I finally get the gun out to sight the gun in it's something bad. When I pull the trigger on the first shot it's like the safety was on, but it is not. When I release the trigger and at the gun in Ammunition it goes off - quit when this could get touchy is the delay is longer than a second or two because by then I might hit the gun pointed at son I wouldn't want to shoot like a person. This unexpected firing happens after the gun has been stored all
