Tony Prave called again asking what we will do for him.

I asked what he's looking for; he said reimbursement for a $1M hunting trip that he "blow".

I told him that we're sorry that he had problems w/ the gun and that we would do anything to make sure his gun is repaired or properly functioning but that Remington assumes no liability for his last hunting trip.

He didn't like that answer and wanted to know who my boss was. I gave him your name. He also wanted the President's name but I still referred him to you.

I told him you traveled a lot and it would be easier to reach you by mail.

This person does not seem to be extremely rational and very angry. He has talked to at least 10 other C&S who had similar stories.

I did offer 2 boxes of shells when he asked for a full case
