I was using my Remington 700 more than a year ago. Just as I took the safety off, the gun fired. Thankfully, no one was injured and no damage was done. As you can imagine I was shocked by this occurrence. I know I did not touch the trigger. I had bought my gun new in 1984 and had kept it in good condition. I had not put very many rounds through it before it misfired. Please advise me as to what course of action I should take.

Sincerely,

Gene Ritter
