

To whom it may concern:

I am returning to you my Remington 7mm mag, because I am afraid to use it the way it is, in hopes that your company will make it trustworthy again.

Last hunting season I experienced some real bad moments with it that makes me make the foregoing statement.

I will try to explain to you exactly what I'm doing or not doing that makes me so afraid of it now.

1. When it's cold outside and you pull the trigger you'll hear it click but the bullet may not fire right away. Sometimes it might take 10 seconds or what seems to be forever and then it will fire.

2. Sometimes when you're loading another shell in the chamber it will go off.

I am very afraid someone is going to get killed or badly hurt when using this Rifle. Making the way it is.
