12/13/10 Per email sent from Craig Clark/Ken Nickerson, "My 17 year old son was hunting with his Model 700 Remington rifle tonight and tried to take a shot, but the gun didn't fire. He loaded a bullet again, but by this time, the critter moved and he put the gun down, and randomly with no hands near the firing mechanism, the gun shot missing his head by the Grace of God! I'm going to mail this weapon back to your company. I am thankful my son is okay -- but you can have this rifle back. I have the Model 770, and I've never had any issues like this."cm 12/13/10 Spoke with Mrs. Hearn, they bought it new a couple of years ago and paid about $800-900. It has had no alterations. This was the first year he has used it.cm

To Whom It May Concern:

My 17 year old son was hunting with his Model 700 Remington rifle tonight and tried to take a shot, but the gun didn't fire.
He loaded a bullet again, but by this time, the critter moved and he put the gun down, and randomly with no hands near the firing mechanism, the gun shot missing his head by the Grace of God! I'm going to mail this weapon back to your company. I am thankful my son is okay -- but you can have this rifle back.
I have the Model 770, and I've never had any issues like this. My rifle is a cheaper version, but at least so far it has not fired randomly like this.
I am mailing this rifle back to you. I do not want this weapon anywhere near any of my children -- all of whom have passed Hunter Safety courses, and have taught me all that I know about hunting and shooting a rifle safely.
I have purchased many Remington products for hunting, scopes, bullets, rifles, and now I'm seriously considering shipping every bit of it back to your company.
Please contact me and let me know who I send it to, and what can be done about this issue.

Respectfully,
Sandra Hearn
