A Complete Guide of Rem® Choke Tubes for Your Game and Range.

GAUGES

Shotgun barrels are classified by "gauge" — a term used to indicate the inside diameter of the barrel. Gauge is determined by taking lead balls the same diameter as the gun's bore, then counting the total number of those lead balls it takes to equal one pound. For example: a 12-gauge = 12 lead balls to the pound; a 20-gauge = 20 lead balls to the pound. The most common types of shotgun gauges are 10, 12, 16, 20 and 28, with 12 being the most popular. The .410 bore shotgun is really not a "gauge" per se, but an actual measurement of the bore in inches. Most importantly, remember: the smaller the gauge number, the larger the actual bore size.

GAUGE SIZES
GAUGE	10	12	16	20	28	.410
GAUGE SIZES
Diameter in inches	.780	.727	.670	.617	.550	.410

*.410 is named by its size, not by its gauge. Gauges are shown at 70% scale.

CHOKES

The inside bore constriction at the muzzle end of a shotgun's barrel is known as the "choke." When a shotshell is fired travels down the bore, exits the muzzle and begins to "spread out." Just as a nozzle on the end of a garden hose controls the spray of water, the choke controls the spread of shot — making it narrower or wider.

The three basic chokes for a shotgun are known as "full" (tight constriction; delivers a narrow, dense spread), "modified" (less constriction; delivers a medium-width spread) and "improved cylinder" (even less constriction; delivers a wide, open spread). A gun which has no choke is called a "cylinder bore" and delivers the widest spread. There are also a number of specialty chokes that provide narrower or wider spreads — some of the most popular are for skeet shooting and turkey hunting.

A shotgun's choke also determines its effective range. The tighter the constriction, the farther the effective range. For instance, a "full" choke is most effective at 40 to 50 yards. An "improved cylinder" is most effective from 20 to 30 yards. Shotgun barrels come with either "fixed" (non-removable) chokes or today's more popular "interchangeable" screw-in choke tubes (like the Rem® Choke system) that allow hunters to quickly and easily change chokes to match changing shooting conditions.

A Complete Guide of Rem® Choke Tubes for Your Game and Range.

REM® CHOKES

Rem Chokes are a system of interchangeable choke tubes that allow you to quickly and easily change the choke of your shotgun to match specific hunting conditions. Rem™ Choke tubes are made in America from the highest grade of heat-treated, seamless stainless steel - giving them the strength to handle steel or lead shot without wear or loss of constriction.

MOST COMMONLY USED CHOKES

Super-Full and Extra-Full Chokes:

"The gobbler getters." Specialized chokes with extra-tight constrictions and the densest patterns — ideally suited for the head shots necessary in turkey hunting.

Full Choke: Tight constriction for dense pattern (approximately 70% of a shell's total pellets in a 30" circle at 40 yards). Best for trap shooting, pass shooting waterfowl, turkey hunting and shooting buckshot loads.

Modified Choke: Less constriction than full choke (approximately 60% of a shell's total pellets in a 30" circle at 40 yards). Excellent for all-around hunting of waterfowl, long-range flushing upland birds (such as late-season pheasant and sharptail grouse) as well as other small game. Also used for trap shooting.

Improved Cylinder Choke: Even less constriction than modified (approximately 50% of a shell's total pellets in a 30" circle at 40 yards). Ideal for close-in small game shooting, upland bird hunting (such as quail, grouse and pheasant) as well as hunting waterfowl close over decoys. Rifled slugs also perform very well from this choke.

Cylinder Bore: No constriction (approximately 40% of a shell's total pellets in a 30" circle at 40 yards). Most often used by law enforcement for service shotguns.

Skeet Choke: a specialty choke (approximately 50% of a shell's total pellets in a 30" circle at 25 yards) designed to deliver optimum patterns for close-range skeet shooting.

SPREAD EFFECTS OF THE MOST COMMON TYPES OF CHOKES

SHOTGUN CHOKES AND PATTERNS FOR LEAD SHOT

All Rem® Chokes and Wrenches should be ordered through Sports South at 800-772-4286

Below are generally accepted basic recommendations on guns/calibers for basic game, along with logical facts to support the recommendation. Knowledge of local or state laws are required for special recommendations, i.e. some areas require steel shotshell for all hunting, including rabbit, squirrel, pheasant, etc.

SHOTGUNS:

TURKEY HUNTING - Wingmaster HD™ or Lead in 10 or 12 ga. gun with Magnum Turkey Loads, shot through a full or special Turkey Choke Tube. Turkeys are big and heavy so you need maximum knock down power with a dense shot pattern. Number 4, 5 or 6 shot are preferred.

Note: Wingmaster HD™ vs Steel vs Lead what shot size is correct? When changing from lead to steel the old rule is drop down 2 shot sizes, i.e. change from #4 to #2 shot, etc. Wingmaster HD™ is denser than lead or steel and has more energy per pellet. The recommendation is moving up 3 shot sizes from steel, i.e. change from #1 shot to #4, etc.; for turkey hunting this means moving up from #4 shot to #5 or #6, etc. Remember that there is no substitute for experience. Practice shooting your gun, ammo and choke combinations at a pattern board before season to see which combination works best for you.

GOOSE HUNTING - Wingmaster HD™ or Steel Shotshells are required. 10 & 12 ga. shotguns are preferred, 20 ga. guns are less effective. Use a Modified or Full choke for pass shooting and an Improved Cylinder or Modified choke for shooting over decoys. Geese are big heavy birds so your customer needs the heavy magnum loads with BB - #2 shot. Longer barrels (28"+) are preferred due to their long sighting radius and smooth follow through; when shooting out of blinds some hunters prefer a shorter barrel.

DUCK HUNTING - Wingmaster HD™ or Steel Shotshells are required. 12 ga. is the most popular but 20 ga. guns are also acceptable. Use a Modified choke for pass shooting and an Improved Cylinder for shooting over decoys. Use a heavy magnum with #2 or #4 shot for large ducks (Mallards, Canvas Back, etc.), use a short magnum or magnum with #2 or #4 shot for smaller ducks (Pintail, Teal, etc.). Longer barrels (28"+) are preferred due to their long sighting radius and smooth follow through; when shooting out of blinds some hunters prefer a shorter barrel.

PHEASANT - Lead shot in all popular gauges. Use IC choke for close hunting, use Modified or Full for long range field shooting. Preferred barrel length is 26" - 30". Use a Long Range Express or Short Magnum shell in #4 - #6 shot. Bigger shot may be dangerous when hunting in large groups. Use Express Steel Shotshell in steel only hunting areas.

GROUSE - Lead shot in all popular gauges. Use mostly IC choke for hunting in heavy cover. Short barrels are preferred. Field or Heavy Field loads in #6 or #7½ shot are preferred.

DOVE & QUAIL - Lead shot in all popular gauges. Use mostly IC or Modified chokes and short barrels 21" - 26", depending on the shooting distance. Field, Heavy Field or Heavy Dove loads in #6, #7½ or #8 shot. Later in the season many hunters prefer heavier loads with large shot size (#6).

RABBIT & SQUIRREL - Lead shot in all popular gauges. Use mostly IC or Modified chokes and short barrels 21" - 26", depending on the shooting distance. Field, Heavy Field or Heavy Dove loads in #6, #7½ or #8 shot. For high tree shots (squirrels) or long field shots (rabbits) many hunters use a Modified choke with #6 shot. For larger rabbits at longer range some hunters will use #4 shot.

RIFLES

VARMINT HUNTING - C.F. Bolt Action Rifles in Varmint Calibers (222 Rem., 223 Rem., 243 Win., 6mm Rem. 25-06 Rem.) Hunters prefer smaller calibers with light, flat shooting bullets. Low recoil is important since for some varmint hunting several hundred shots could be fired a day. Selling Tip - When shooting several hundred rounds a day the shooter needs a good portable cleaning kit for periodic cleaning; this improves accuracy and gives the barrel time to cool.

MEDIUM SIZE BIG GAME (Deer, Antelope, Black Bear, etc.) - C.F. Bolt Action, Pump Action, Autoloading and Lever Action Rifles in Medium Game Calibers (243 Win., 6mm Rem., 25-06 Rem., 270 Win., 7mm-08 Rem., 7mm Rem. Mag., 30 Car., 30-30 Win., 308 Win., 30-06 Springfield, and 35 Remington) These are all popular hunting calibers. Those who prefer lighter recoil might choose the 243 Win. and 6mm Rem. The heavier Magnum calibers are not as efficient on Medium Size animals as the bullets may pass completely through the animal and not expend their energy. Bolt Action Youth rifles are available in 243 Win. for younger or smaller shooters; these have shorter stocks and barrels designed for the youth shooter.

The 243 Win., 6mm Rem. and 25-06 Rem. are versatile combinations for those who will use the gun for both Varmint Hunting and Deer Hunting.

BIG GAME (Grizzly Bear, Elk, Moose, Sheep, etc.) - C.F. Bolt Action Rifles in Big Game Calibers (30-06 Springfield, 7mm Rem. Mag., 7mm Rem. Ultra Mag., 7mm Rem. SA Ultra Mag., 300 Win. Mag., 300 Rem. Ultra Mag., 300 Rem. SA Ultra Mag., 300 Weatherby Mag. and 338 Win. Mag.). These are all heavier recoiling calibers, designed for killing big game. For those hunters who want 1 gun for mostly deer hunting and possible Big Game, their best choice is the 30-06 Springfield or 7mm Rem. Mag. The other Magnum calibers are really designed for Big Game.

SHOTGUN DEER HUNTING NOTE - Some states or areas within a state require Deer Hunting with a shotgun only. Most allow the use of 00 Buckshot or Slugs. Knowledge of your local laws is required. Your customer may be hunting in a different state. Slugs work best when shot through slug barrels. Slugs can be shot through regular barrels with IC chokes. Wal*Mart now sells slug guns with "Rifled" slug barrels. When using Premier® Copper Solid™ Sabot or BuckHammer™ Lead Slugs, these "rifled" barrels give near rifle like accuracy.
