Dear Dick;

First let me say how much I appreciated you being with us Dealer's day, and many thanks for the replacement parts. I expected to see you in the trophy room, before you left. Sorry I missed you. We have a XP100 that a customer wants us to install a Fajen wood stock. Fajen has made no provision for the trigger balance in the stock, and if we were to install it, it would hang out of the bottom of stock. I do not feel that this would be safe to omit the trigger balance. I would like your comments on the above as soon as possible. I will write Fajen in the meantime. If you write Fajen would appreciate it if you did not mention our name.

Dear Bill:

It would certainly be a mistake to omit the trigger balance. This prevents the gun from falling in the event the gun is dropped in the muzzle. I will not write Fajen, since you intend to. He should be informed of this, however.
