Action

According to the U.S. Department of Commerce, both Turkes and ifussia are classified as Market Economies, which means that they theoretically operateon market principles of cost and pricing structures. What is not known &" if the firearns manufacturers in these countries who make foreign like products are li. beneficiaties of government subsidies that allow them to "dump" product on Hie U.S. liomis. market. The prices of these firearms suggest an unfair advantage wheir compared to normal values, but as yet there has been no determination on whether dumputs st taking place as defined by Title VII of the Tariff Act of 1930.

One remedy is to file a petition with both 1 l. Import Administration and the United States International Trade Commission. If an tiditils believes that injury is taking place due to unfair competition through subsidizelimin as. Iumping of a foreign product, it may request the imposition of antilumping or countervailing duties through this petition. To ensure that there is sufficient support by domestic industry for the investigation into the alleged injury fie petitionter(s) must represent at least $25 \%$ of domestic production. Remington alone fits the bill here, as it represents between $28 \%$ and $29 \%$ of the domestic shotgun market Reminson will therefore explore this remedy as a means of redress in 2003-2004.

To help protect Remington's 870 Fxpress business from threats of this kind, cost reduction efforts that are reflected in price will be necessary in addition to an honest estimation of overall pricing stategy in this category. The feasibility of wholesale price reductiontodinive volume or the introduction of cash rebates will be evaluated for 2004.
