> Dear Mr. Bell,

> Thank you for contacting Remington Country. The Remington Model mentioned was manufactured in 1988 as a .35 Whelen Classic. The Remington Classic does not have white spacers as you would see on the BDL model, nor the Monte Carlo Comb.

> I want to know per the serial number (C6214868), if this rifle started out as a .35 Whelen Model 700 BDL or Classic. I purchased this weapon recently per a consignment sale. Some of the finishes and the stock don't appear consistent to 700's I purchased before. It is a blued, standard barrel with BDL rifle sights. The stock has a black cap and no white stripe-Classics have this style of stock, so I'm confused. I'll send more info if you need it.
