Thank you for your inquiry. Rifles manufactured since 1983 have the non-bolt lock style safety. This means that you can open the bolt on safe. What you are experiencing is the way the rifle has been designed.

I have a nice model 700 in 7mm STW that was made in 1999. I've noticed that when I carry the gun loaded and ready to fire with the safety on that, the bolt will open. Is this normal??? My earlier model 700 in 350 REM MAG. bolt can not be opened when the safety is on and cocked.
