

and when I grabbed the bolt and started to pull the gun fired. (I did not have gloves on so I know I did not touch the trigger) Talk about a shock I was just glad I followed the rules and had it pointed in a safe direction and that I was hunting alone and no one was hurt. All of that to get to this, is there any way to fix this? Because obviously I would not want my son to use it this way. I know they fixed this problem with the newer models because I can leave my gun on safe to unload it. The gun I am referring to is a Model 700 ADL Serial # 77557 any information would be greatly appreciated. Sincerely Dale See

CONFIDENTIAL