I recently had a repair performed on my old 721 under the safety modification program. I am unhappy with the handling of the rifle at the service center (Allison & Carey Gunworks, Portland, Or). I received the rifle from the repair center more than a week ago but just opened the case today. It is an old rifle, and nothing special but it has made it many years without a scratch in the stock. I called the service center on two occasions prior to the maintenance action and expressed my concern that the rifle stock had no scratches and I would appreciate it if they took great care of it. They seemed put out by my request and stated that they were a professional organization and did this work on a daily basis. I received the rifle back and there is a pressure dent in the stock just below the receiver on the left side. It is small but it is a matter of principle. They also failed to send the $20 rebate coupon that is cited on your web site. Today is Sunday and they are not open. Tomorrow I will give them a call. Just wanted you folks at Remington to know that I have an appreciation for this rifle. It is a matter of pride and I take good care of it and expect the folks at Remington or their authorized representatives to do the same.

Sincerely,
John Elmore

PS, attached is a jpeg of the stock.
