New Production Model 1100™ Sporting DL Provides Custom Gun Performance

Madison, NC – Over 40 years after its introduction, the Remington® Model 1100 autoloader is still the choice of many competitive shooters for its superior performance, handling qualities and rich tradition on skeet and trap fields worldwide. New for 2005 is the Model 1100 Sporting DL (Deluxe) 12 gauge shotgun, providing the serious target shooter a true high performance shotgun direct from the factory. This deluxe, customized version complements the existing line-up of Model 1100 sporting-grade autoloaders available in 12, 20, and 28-gauges and .410 bore.

With all of the smooth-handling and reliable operating features of the Model 1100 field guns, the Model 1100 Sporting DL package adds the performance-enhancing and classic design features required for today's competitive sporting disciplines. This 12-gauge, 2³/₄-inch soft-recoiling autoloader has a 30-inch vent-rib barrel with extended ProBore™ custom choke tubes. ProBore tubes are optimized for overbored barrels and Skeet, Improved Cylinder, Light Modified and Modified chokes are included with the Sporting DL. The high polished blued barrel is overbored (with a diameter of .735) and has lengthened forcing cones which lessens shot deformity, improves shot patterns and further reduces the felt recoil of this soft-shooter. Fiber optic front bead and steel mid-bead sights provide for ease of target acquisition and improved second shot follow-up. Enhancing the performance level of this Model 1100 is a nickel-plated Teflon® finish on internal operating parts (action bars, hammer, sear and magazine tube) and on the ruggedly-designed receiver.

The Model 1100 Sporting DL features a semi-fancy American walnut stock with handsome high-gloss finish and cut-checkering. Designed to provide proper fit, the competition-style stock has an adjustable comb, 2¹/₂-inch drop at the heel and 14¹/₄-inch length of pull. Fit with a sporting-clays style recoil pad, this target gun is designed for maximum performance and custom-fit to meet every shooter's needs.

Hunters speak for itself, more competitive shooters look to Remington to provide a reliable well-designed, high performance shotgun when every target counts. The Model 1100 Sporting DL (Deluxe) 12 gauge autoloading shotgun is available at a suggested retail price of $1,395.
