Three High Performance Hunting Knives Added to Remington's Legendary Cutlery Line

Madison, NC – Since the early 19th century, Remington has offered an impressive line of highly collectible knives including the famous series of Bullet® knives. The same quality, durability and selection are reflected in the Remington® line of hunting knives. Three new fixed blade offerings for 2003 will meet the expectations of even the most demanding outdoorsmen.

Two new versions will be added to the Conquest Fixed Blade line of knives. The Conquest™ Clip Blade Knife is a handsomely designed, high performance hunting knife featuring a 4 1/4-inch hollow-ground blade, constructed of 420 high carbon stainless steel. The full length tang, featuring the Remington tang stamp, includes a functional thumb notch and is housed in a durable rosewood handle. Overall length is 9 inches and a high quality leather sheath embossed with the Remington logo is included. The Conquest Gut Hook Knife features the same high quality construction with a 4 1/4-inch hollow-ground blade and zipper-style gut hook, ideal for field dressing. Overall length is 9 inches and an embossed leather sheath is included with the Conquest Gut Hook Knife.

The rugged and durable Camo-Handled Fixed Blade Knife features a drop point cutting blade with gut hook and full tang construction. The 420 high carbon stainless steel blade is finished with a non-reflective, black powder coating. The handle is glass-filled Zytel®, camouflaged with Realtree® Hardwoods®, and is embossed with the Remington logo. The Camo-Handled Fixed Blade Knife has an overall length of 9 inches and is packaged with a black leather belt sheath.

Sportsmen, hunters and collectors look to Remington for finely crafted and high performance knives.
