Exciting New Additions To Remington® UMC® Line-up

Madison, NC – To further meet the needs of today's volume shooter, Remington's American-made UMC Line is expanded for 2003. Now fans of the popular 45 Auto will have a more diverse selection of UMC cartridges to choose from with the addition of a lighter 185 grain weight offering.

The 185 grain bullet exhibits the jacket profile of the popular 185 grain jacketed hollow point. This allows the shooter to practice with an economical round and still get the same function, feeding and point-of-impact characteristics from their handguns.

Also new for 2003, select UMC high-volume handgun and rifle cartridges will be available in value pack configurations. Perfect for the range or competition, 9mm Luger will be boxed in a convenient single pack quantity of 100 rounds. For varmint hunters and high capacity target shooters, Remington UMC rifle ammunition will be offered in 40 round boxes of highly accurate 223 Remington and 22-250 Remington with 45 grain jacketed hollow point bullets.
