

Model 700 Bolt Lock Mechanism

Discussion Thread

Response (S. Nations)

7/2/2002 10:23:59 AM

Dear Mr. Tucker:

Welcome to Remington Country! In response to your question about your Model 700 your firearm was produced in or about 1970 so it is a candidate for our modification program. This is not a recall. It is a modification that will be done to the trigger assembly to make it so that you can open the bolt with the safety on. You can get the full information, which includes what you would need to do to participate in the program at our web site (www.remington.com). It is on the first page in the middle (typed in orange). Look for "Bolt Action Safety Message". This should provide you with all the information that you need. If not then please let us know. Thank you for your safety mindedness. The modification program is part of Remington's commitment to safety. Have a great day and happy hunting!
Sheila

Customer (Junior Tucker)

6/28/2002 7:46:00 PM

I have a Model 700 rifle- 25-06 caliber. Serial number is 6332875. My owned this gun for several years and my Mother gave it to me when my Father died. I don't have access to a phone during your office hours. Is this gun included in the safety recall. Thank you.

Father

Junior Tucker