Response (Chris)

Dear Mr. Ford,

Thank you for your interest in Remington firearms. Remington does not offer muzzle brake installation on our rifles any longer.

Our current Model 700 firearms no longer have a bolt lock, so that there is a reduced chance of accidents. The bolt can be operated with the safety on or off. To view information on the Safety Modification Program, go to:
http://www.remington.com/Safety\_Modification\_Program/remington\_safety.htm

Rifle sights are not offered on the stainless barreled actions.

Customer (brian birks)
