

i just purchased this rifle and on a bear hunting trip i lost numerous bullet...

Discussion Thread

Response (Chris)
Dear Mr. Thelian,

5/8/2003 2:43:26 PM

we apologize for the frustration you are incurring. we will be glad to inspect the firearm to see if the bolt moves too freely. we have offered this style non-bolt lock safety since the mid-80's and most hunters do not find it such a burden. If you would like to forward it for inspection, please follow the previous instructions for sending the firearm to our factory.

Customer (casimer thelian)

5/5/2003 12:01:46 AM

> > > I am responding to the e-mail and the response I got from your > tech
> > department over the phone, I was told this is the new way they are
>
> > built,
> > I own several of your guns built the old way where the bolt locks
>
> > shut
> > while on safety I guess remington is building guns for bench > > shooters
> > know instead of the hunter and outdoorsman, and I say this because
>
> > with > > the amount of money I spent for this rifle it can't be used in the
>
> > feild
> > with the features it now has. I have enjoyed your rifles for > years
> > but > > will not purchase another weapon from remington because of the > > change. I > > guess I have to chalk this purchase up as a expensive mistake.
> >