

remington 700 s/s 300 win mag

Discussion Thread

Response (TODD)

10/14/2003 10:14:10 AM

Dear Mr. Dickieson,

Thank you for your inquiry. Since 1982, all Remington bolt action firearms have been made so that the shooter can unload the firearm while it is in the "safe" position. We no longer offer a bolt lock style safety.

Customer (jim dickieson)

10/11/2003 12:27:33 PM

I purchased the above rifle some years ago and it has one fault that I need help with or I have to get rid of the rifle. The bolt will open with the safety ON, which results in it opening while hunting through the bush. I am a guide/hunter for moose and bear and can not live with this problem. Can it be resolved or do I just get rid of it. I have owned numerous 700's and never had this problem. This is unacceptable for my kind of work/hunting.