I have a model 721 30-06, probably manufactured in the mid 1950's (serial # 196596). The gun has been in my family since originally purchased, and has been well cared for. Recently a friend told me that he thought there was a recall of some sort on this rifle due to a safety defect, whereas the gun would accidentally discharge even with the safety on. I let my son use this gun, and have become a little concerned about my friend's comment. Any substance to a know safety defect regarding this gun ????
