Should I get Jann Jones to look at this or just type up my own response?

How about this? This is in the Bolt Lock Safety Modification Q&A.

The Model 700 bolt action rifle has been one of America's premier hunting rifles for 42 years. Over 4 million of these rifles have been sold to hunters, target shooters and law enforcement agencies across the US. When used following the rules of safe gun handling, including proper maintenance, and not inappropriately altered, the Remington Model 700 is a safe rifle.

I have owned and currently own many of your fire arms including the model 700. After extensive reasarch into you handling of the safety issue of the rifle firing when the safety is removed and you prior knowledge of it. I have decided that you put profits before safety or the lives of your coustomers. I know of the 10 comandments of firearm safety, and I know such things as addtional insurance againt injury. We are all human and far from perfect. NO GUN SHOULD FIRE when the safety is removed PERIOD. You have lost a coustomer for life. PS. I own numerous Remington rifles and shotguns.
